As Taylor left the station there was lots of talk of lynching. He could not help hearing it, and he was extremely nervous. The patrel wagon was followed for a num-her of squares by a good portion of the crowd, but the horse was driven at such a rapid pace that the wagon soon outdistanced the pursuers.

Since Taylor's arrival here at noon Saturday he has spent considerable money and given away a large amount. The officers who have been conducting the investigation are able to account for more than $400, and this leads them to believe he had no complices in the Rosenstein murder and After walking from Forest Glen to Silver Spring and coming to the city on a Bright-wood electric car Taylor reached Phillip's court just as the bells were ringing the hour of noon and he ate dinner with his former friends. He made the house of Annie Nelson, his cousin, his headquarters, and during his brief career he visited many women in the alley and spent money as freely as would a millionaire. In addition, he gave away a large sum, a number of he gave away a large sum, a number of children receiving $5 gold pieces from him. He contributed $20 to the defense of Wyatt Frazer, who was then under arrest for alleged rape. Frazer, it appears, was to be married to a niece of Annie Nelson and Taylor was anxious to help him. The money contributed in this way may have gone toward attorney's fees, and it is believed to be beyond identification and recovery.

Taylor's presence in this city lately was discovered by Policeman Heare of the third precinct and Detective Parham. These offiafternoon and they soon tracked him to his cousin's house. In this house they as-certained he had some of his wearing apparel, and they knew he intended to re-turn and get it. They concluded that he was the Taylor who was wanted in Montcomery county.

It was known that he would return to the house, and for this reason the officers kept within calling distance while the house was being shadowed. The Star from Mr. George F. Zeh suggesting that a fund be raised by popular subscription for the relief of Sergt. Passau's family. Mr. Zeh says:

"Sergt. Passau is dead, the bread winner of that family has been sacrificed for a desperado, and his widow and children will now have to shift for themselves, with the assistance of a small police pension, which in nowise will support and educate the in nowise will support and educate the children. Citizens of Washington, take this sluation to your own homes. Think of leaving your family in the morning and being hauled home dead in a few hours. "I would suggest that in view of these facts The Star start a popular subscription for the purpose of procuring a home for that hero's family. Of our 270,000 population we ought to have 10,000 subscribers, giving $1 each, by the first day of June. "Inclosed find my subscription for $1."

A Good Suggestion. Mr. A. D. Tucker, under date of today. writes The Star as follows: "As a peaceful solution to any squabble in claiming the reward of $200 offered by the authorities of Montgomery county, Md. for the capture of the murderer of the Rosensteins, I would suggest that all claimants waive their rights in favor of the widow and children of the brave who lost his life, and who no doubt would have been the one to capture the guilty wretch had he not met his utimely end." about it.

The killing of Sergt. Passau by Taylor has greatly increased the indignation of the people of this county, and it is believed to be fortunate for the criminal that he is in the District jail instead of at Rockville. There is not much talk against Brown, and it is not likely that any effort will be made to do him violence until more criminating evidence against him is obtained.

CHANGES HIS STORY.

Taylor's Last Version of the Murder

at Slidell.

Today Taylor, the alleged murderer of Sergeant Passau, changed his story of the Montgomery county tragedy. He said he went to Rosenstein's store with John Alfred Brown, who is in jail at Rockville.

When Farmer Linthicum passed the store

and saw him at the door Brown, he said, was inside. Brown killed Mr. Rosenstein, and he (Taylor) struck the woman.

and he (Taylor) struck the woman.

Lieut, Swindells said to a Star reporter
this afternoon that his officers had accounted for about $300 in Taylor's possession, or about one-half the amount alleged to have been taken from Rosenstein's store,
